TOM NICHOL DEAD.

The telegraph brings the news that Thomas M. Nichol, formerly of this state, died in New York city at a hospital for incurables.

Mr. Nichol was a strange character. He was a bright man in some respects, and what Senator Sawyer said of him was very true, "he was all sail and no rudder." Here is a brief sketch of his life:

Nichol was born in Ohio, went into the army, carried a musket for four years and at the close of the war landed in Illinois, down near Belleville, where he taught school for several winters and worked at blacksmithing in summers. Then he moved out to Kansas and lived at Humboldt and Fort Scott for a time. At the latter place he edited a newspaper for several months. His hobbies always were finance and politics and he would walk twenty miles to hear a political speech. The winter debating societies were his delight, and it was said in that country that there was not a lawyer or a minister or a pedagogue in these counties who could stand up with him in a discussion. He was a bit of a lawyer, too, and during his experience as a school teacher in Illinois he successfully defended a friendless fellow who was under trial for murder.

Mr. Nichol came to this state in 1876 to sell a plot that he had invented. Just at that time the soft money craze was raging in Wisconsin. On the afternoon he landed at Cary, "he learned that General S. T. Cary was to make a greenback speech in the town hall that evening. Of course Nichol went to hear him and during the progress of the speech asked Cary some questions. The speaker was very much embarrassed by the perplexing inquiries put to him by the stranger and finally decided not to answer any more of them. Mr. Nichol, an entire stranger to everybody in the room, then arose and asked permission to reply to Cary at the conclusion of the latter's remarks, but he was prevented from going so by the greenbackers, who put out the lights and drove the crowd from the hall. There was great excitement in the town and Nichol found himself a hero. The republicans then hired the hall for the next evening and Nichol made a speech in which he demolished Cary in such a manner as to commend himself to the Wisconsin Republican committee, by whom he was employed to follow Cary about the state.

Mr. Nichol did good service in Wisconsin for sound money and the republican party. Afterward he became acquainted with Sherman, Garfield, Hayes, Blaine and many other public men. He was Garfield's private secretary during the campaign of 1880, and soon after the 4th of March, 1881, he was made commissioner of Indian affairs, and was in office less than thirty days. He was not able to hold the position. After this he drifted from one thing to another, proving a miserable failure in all things except making speeches for honest money. He never had a home, and never had money except what his friends gave him. He was a great theorist, but in the practical affairs of life he was living in vain. If by any means he would get some money, it would find its way out of his pocket and he would not know. He had plenty of chances to make some money with which to supply his wants, but he did not make it; and when his last day came, his board and his physician's bills were paid by his friends.

Mr. Nichol was a great character, but of that kind which serves as a warning and not as an example to be followed.

MONEY IN ELECTIONS.

A correspondent in the New York Sun has contributed to that paper an alleged detailed statement of the party funds expended in that city by the various parties to influence the recent election. According to the story the republican campaign expenses were $120,000; Tammany hall, $100,000; the county democracy, $60,000; the Federal Liberty League, $20,000; the Coogan Labor party, $125,000; the tariff league, $10,000; and the various congressional, assembly, and all-alarm candidates of all parties over $100,000. In all the election fund expended was $550,000.

There is no doubt that much of this money was either wasted, or spent to debauch voters, taking, for instance, the $125,000 spent by the labor party which had less than ten thousand voters. The Sun correspondent wants to know when this business is to be stopped? With practical politics he will find that it will be very difficult, if not wholly impossible, to stop it. A campaign can no more be managed without money than a government can be run without funds. But, of course, the question is how can this great expenditure of money be checked which is set apart for the buying of votes, or in other words to unduly influence voters. It is hard to draw a line beyond which no party shall go in this matter. One would suppose that the third party which has a pharisaic boast of its own righteousness, paid so small and unprincipled a man as John P. St. John, $50 a night to slander the republican party. Neither the republicans nor the democrats of New York or Indiana, ever made such a questionable use of money as that.

In speaking on this subject a writer in the Chicago Tribune says: "In Great Britain the expenditure for election is closely limited. The parties must exhibit their expense bills. A violation of the law is not only followed by disfranchisement of the voter who receives a bribe but rejects the candidate in whose behalf the money is corruptly used. The English penalties are found to be effective, but none too severe to put a stop to corrupt use of money at elections."

The effect of the election of Harrison on southern whites: Many southern men, some of them persons of prominence, have complained that the election of General Harrison has had a "bad effect" on the freedmen. It has, they say, "made them insolent, domineering, and aggressive." A striking illustration of this is furnished by an incident which happened day before yesterday on the Atlanta & West Point Railroad in Georgia. A colored man, who was occupying a seat in the car reserved for the use of colored persons, was asked by a white man who came into the car, presumably to smoke, to give him his seat. The colored man declined, and the white man, "stung to madness by his gross insult," drew a revolver and shot him, perhaps fatally. As the effort was so intolerable public sympathy is all on the side of the man who did the shooting. In view of this so-called arrogant and insolent demeanor on the part of the blacks, their growing disinclination to give up their seats in the colored cars, to take off their hats to white loafers, and in other ways to acknowledge their inferiority, it is no wonder that the chivalry of the south say they dread negro insurrections and a war of races.

There are 12,000 Masons in Arkansas. John M. Clayton was a member of the fraternity in high standing and was recently elected. Every Mason should contribute a dollar to the fund for the capture of his murderer. —Arkansas Democrat.

A pretty good suggestion, but it is not likely that this will result favorably. But let the Masons go to work at the contributions, and then let the Arkansas Democrat and its friends see that Breckinridge is politically killed in the Second district.

Referring to ex-Governor Rosk's chance of being a member of Gen. Harrison's cabinet, the Prairie du Chien Courier (dem.) says: "There is not another republican of prominence in this state whom the people would be more pleased to see honored, for 'Honest Old Jerry' is a favorite, and his party have reason to be proud of the old warrior."

Mr. Breckinridge says he has "given up days and nights since Clayton's murder to grief and gloom." But all that doesn't count. What justice demands is that he shall give up his seat in congress tainted with blood. Manufactured grief and gloom are of no account in this case.

It won't be a month from now before Germany and all other countries in that part of the world will learn that the United States is on deck, and that the American flag is put back to its old place.

They say General Harrison is taking a rest. But his cabinet-makers know no such thing as rest.

MYER NOT ILL.

The Time and Place for His Battle with McAniff Selected.

STREATOR, Ill. Feb. 11.—A report is current here that owing to a rumored illness of Billy Myer sporting men of Chicago and other places are a little backward about putting their money up on him. Myer is not nor has he been ill. He has taken the very best of care of himself and is in splendid form. No man ever entered the ring in better condition than will Myer in the coming battle. His friends here will not be afraid to back. Pools have been formed here by men who will not be able to witness the fight, and thousands of dollars are now on deposit to be sent to the ring.

Myer is a good and conscientious boy. He never spurs nor pounds the bag on the Sabbath, and he never takes an exception. Saturday afternoon he ran eight miles in seventy minutes, doing this almost daily to strengthen his limbs and develop his "wind organs."

The battle ground has been selected and the time agreed upon, but neither has yet been made public.

Murderers Arrested.

CHARLESTON, S. C. Feb. 11.—Cesar Frazer and Ned Cies, two noted negro desperadoes, were arrested Sunday morning charged with the murder of E. H. Oldenburg Saturday night in this city. They were being taken away to the penitentiary. Frazer acknowledges the act, but Cies denies it. Each denies being with the other. Proof of the guilt of both is overwhelming. Robbery was their object. It was the most brutal murder ever committed in Charleston. The people are greatly excited.

Minister Phelps Arrives.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The North German Lloyd steamer Lahn, with the Rev. Mr. Phelps and wife and Mollie Garfield and husband on board, arrived at quarantine Saturday morning.

A Terrible Misfortune.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nervous, more despondent, weaker every day. Yet this is the unhappy lot of hundreds who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in the belief of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which in countless instances, has built up constitutions sapped by weakness and infirmity and long unobscured by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, soothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial diseases, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

THE CRIMINAL RECORD.

MINNESOTA WHITECAPS AT THEIR WORK.

Killed His Stepson—A London Burglar's Crime—Murdered for Revenge—Other Crimes.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 11.—The Minnesota White Caps, who do business under the name of the Mystic League, perpetrated an outrage under the very shadows of police headquarters Sunday morning and escaped undetected. Several weeks ago Prof. D'Henzel, a French teacher who lives at the Clifton hotel, received a notice headed with a skull and cross bones, warning him to change his ways, saying that he had made himself obnoxious on several occasions and was a habitual drunkard. He paid no attention to the notice, but laughed at it. A week ago he received a second warning. This one read as follows: "This is the second and last warning. Beware of the white caps. If you do not heed the warning, at 10 o'clock Thursday morning while on his way home from a banquet at the Ryan hotel, he was suddenly attacked by a mob wearing white masks. He was thrown to the ground and the attacking party kicked him in the face several times, knocking him a dozen teeth down his throat and breaking his nose and jaw. When found by the police D'Henzel was unconscious and bleeding profusely from a dozen wounds. D'Henzel came to St. Paul from Hartford, Conn., where he was agent for Perrier, Just & Co. and several queer stories of his conduct there followed him here.

MURDERED BY A BURGLAR.

An English Landlord Killed with a Razor Wielded by a Negro Sailor.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Mr. Kent, the landlord of the Gloucester hotel at Swansea, was killed by a burglar early Sunday morning. He retired, with his wife at a late hour after locking all the doors, including those of his own bedroom. Early Sunday morning the wife heard a match struck in the room and saw a negro in the act of lighting a candle. She awoke her husband and he immediately grappled with the intruder while the wife took a pistol from under the pillow. As it was too dark to take aim she lit a candle. She then aimed and fired and the negro fell, wounded in the thigh. Cursing the woman he crept under the bed, but as she was unlocking the door he emerged and seized a mirror, drew it at her. It missed her, but extinguished the light, and the negro succeeded in escaping. When she relighted the candle she discovered that her husband's throat and stomach had been cut with a razor. Kent lived long enough to describe the murderer. An alarm was raised and about noon the negro was discovered at a dry dock. He is a seaman named Tom Allen. He was badly wounded and covered with blood. Allen confessed and said that his motive was robbery. He concealed himself in the room before the house was closed Saturday night.

MURDERED FOR REVENGE.

A Georgia Youth Kills the Man Who Interfered in His Love Affair.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 11.—The murder of J. W. McKennon, a wealthy farmer of Chattahoochee county, by Jesse Wilkinson, has a sensational feature behind it. Wilkinson has been lately paying his addresses to a young lady living near McKennon, and had asked her hand in marriage. She consulted McKennon as a family friend, and was advised to have nothing to do with the young man. By some means Wilkinson learned of this advice and vowed revenge. On Thursday McKennon rode by Wilkinson's house, when the latter immediately armed himself with his six-shooter, mounted his horse and started off in hot chase of McKennon. Overtaking him he emptied five barrels into McKennon's body, killing him in his saddle. The horse started off in fright and threw his dead rider into the ditch. The bullet that entered McKennon's back, showing that he was shot down from the rear. Great excitement prevails over the affair.

FATALLY STABBED HIS STEPSON.

John Richards, of Sparta, Wis., Attacks John Mooney with a Knife.

SPARTA, Wis. Feb. 11.—Word reached Sparta Sunday morning that John T. Richards had stuck a knife into the stepson, John Mooney. Sheriff Jones and his deputy started at once for Richards' house, which is about four miles west of this city. On arriving there they found Richards still at home half drunk. Mooney was stretched out on the bed with several cuts on his body. The most serious was one that penetrated his right lung. This the doctors pronounced fatal. Richards had been drinking, and entered the room where Mooney was sitting and asked to be slapped. Mooney complied with the request when asked the second time. Richards then ran out of the room and came back with a large jack knife and attacked Mooney. Richards' wife, who tried to separate the fighters, had one hand badly cut. Richards is now in the county jail.

Desperado Killed by a Marshal.

GRANT CITY, Mo., Feb. 11.—A duel at short range took place here Saturday night between Rollo Walton, a young desperado of 21, and City Marshal J. C. Baldrige. Walton had threatened to kill the Marshal, and when the latter met him in a bar-room they opened fire simultaneously. Walton was killed and D. A. Martin, a bystander, was seriously injured in the arm that the limb had to be amputated. The Marshal was not injured.

Killed Himself After Being Insured.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 11.—It is said the suicide of Walter J. Gibson was long premeditated. He had $80,000 insurance on his life, obtained by joining various fraternal and benefit insurance organizations, among them the Ancient Order of United Workmen. The night before his death he was initiated in the Empire Order of Mutual Aid, going direct from the lodge room to the baths, where he ended his life.

Shaken Up by an Earthquake.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 11.—News comes from San Jacinto, a little mountain town in the extreme northern part of San Diego county, that an earthquake shook a few days ago so severe there that a ball in a large hall was broken up and 200 people present sought safety by jumping through windows. Many were trampled under foot, others were cut by broken glass, but no one was fatally hurt.

Big Blaze at Rhinelander, Wis.

RHINELANDER, Wis., Feb. 11.—The entire plant of the Wisconsin Sulphate Fertilizer company, located at Monice, twelve miles south of here, on the Lake Shore railroad, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $80,000, with small insurance.

THE FIRES OF A SUNDAY.

A CHEMICAL HOUSE IN PHILADELPHIA DESTROYED.

Great Destruction of Oil Near New York City—Towboat Burned—Other Conflagrations.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 11.—The extensive establishment of James Wyeth & Brother, manufacturing chemists at 1412, 1414 and 1416 Walnut street, was completely destroyed by fire Sunday. The building was completely gutted and the loss will be between $200,000 and $300,000, nearly completely insured. The fire caused the greatest excitement in the neighborhood. Families hastily packed up their most valuable possessions and moved to safer quarters. The guests of the Hotel Stratford were alarmed and many of them moved out.

By the time the engines arrived the fire had gained tremendous headway, and although the building was provided with iron doors and the best devices known for preventing the spread of fire, in less than forty minutes the whole double building was a mass of flames from Walnut street to Brighton street, about one hundred and fifty feet in the rear. A breeze from the west carried the brands toward Broad street, and many fell on the Hotel Stratford, to the great alarm of the guests. The fire was surrounded by firemen, who placed ladders against the eaves of the adjoining houses, and swarming up with lines of hose, soon had several streams of water playing upon the building. Several explosions occurred, causing the firemen to run for their lives.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the roof of 1404 Walnut street, the annex of the Stratford hotel, was discovered to be on fire, causing a loud alarm, excitement, and bustle throughout the hotel. The fire was immediately put into service and the guests began packing up their belongings. The damage by fire was wholly confined to the upper stories of the annex, the lower floors, with the curtains, carpets, furniture, and clothing of the occupants being damaged wholly by water.

The fire originated in the front part of the cellar of 1412. Its origin is a mystery. The theory generally advanced is that two combustible chemicals came into contact and started the fire, which spread rapidly through the crowded cellar. During the progress of the fire the central portion of the double building fell, burying several firemen. George Showers was taken out dead and Abraham Savary and William Buzzard injured, the latter quite seriously.

AN OIL BLAZE.

Half a Million Destroyed at Constable Hook, N. J.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The Standard Oil works at Constable Hook, N. J., right opposite Staten island, caught fire at 10 o'clock Sunday night. The conflagration is said to have been caused by a watchman who accidentally dropped his lamp in the storehouse, which contained over a hundred thousand barrels of oil. Great sheets of flame shot out from the windows of the storehouse within five minutes after the alleged lamp accident. The volunteer fire department of Constable Hook hurried to the oil works with their engines and by 1 o'clock in the morning succeeded in confining the flames to the lower portion of which it originally started. At midnight it looked as though the fifty oil tanks belonging to the Standard Oil company would have been consumed. By 1:15 five hundred barrels of oil were taken from the works and stowed away for safety in vessels along the docks. The damage is estimated at $500,000.

Shortly after 2 o'clock Monday morning a fire started in a stable in the upper portion of the city, and seven horses were burned to death before they could be extricated. The fire was soon got under control and the damage to the building was slight.

A Towboat Burned.

CAIRO, Ill., Feb. 11.—The towboat Pearl, valued at $15,000, fully insured, was burned to the water's edge in Mount City chute, six miles above here on the Ohio, at 2 o'clock Sunday. The fire originated in the cook house of the boat, total destruction resulting inside of an hour. Four barges, valued at $3,000 each, moored alongside, were badly damaged. The boat was the property of the Conrad line of St. Louis.

Torn to Pieces by Machinery.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 11.—Gardner Ayres, an employee of the Western Elevator company, met with a terrible death Saturday morning. He fell into a corn-shelling machine, and before it could be stopped he was torn to pieces.

Thoroughbred Cattle Roasted.

AUBURN, Ill., Feb. 11.—Last night a barn belonging to C. J. Pulliam, near here, was burned with the contents, including twenty-four head of thoroughbred cattle, one of which was valued at $800. The loss will be about $5,000.
